YE DEADHEAD.

WRITTEN POR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY MARK MEREDITH.

Right merrily ye deadhead Doth greet ye manager. And hall him with affection His small suit to prefer. The manager smiles grimly. He knows what he would say-This fellow who approacheth In such congenial way.

He orders up ye liquors, He passeth ye cigars, He treateth to ye supper, And pays for cabs and cars. To get ye little pasteboard He leaves no stone unturned, He careth not how often His humble plea is spurned!

They know him at ve office. They never see his coin. The ticket taker spies him While seats he would purioin. He tackleth every usher He seeks the foremost row, Without his gracious presence He thinks there'd be no show

Ye theatre he owneth, You'd think so if you heard The way he criticises The play in act and word. He glares at all about him Of such importance he; At benefits he poses In most ecstatic glee.

He's happy, ah! so happy, If he at last procures A ticket that admittance To any show insures. That ticket's worth a dollar; He scans it with a smile-It costs, in drinks, three-fifty. But-that's ye deadhead's style long and lonely stretch of shore—a boat half drawn up on the sandy beach-the sun beaming down from a cloudless sky—a backing of steep, rocky cliffs, and an endless view of the blue Mediterranean, with its surface unruffled by a breath of the stranded boat stands a tall, hands man of twenty-eight, whose regular features, dark complexion and short black hair, clustering around well shaped head, stamp him as a stranger. His blue fiannel shirt, open at the throat, and wide blue trousers, secured by a leathern belt, betray his calling, even if his situation did not. At first he appeared dazed, and as he rubbed his eyes with his hands and ventured one or two steps it could be noticed that he moved with difficulty. He had the appearance of one who had spent many hours in a cramped position. Gradually he recovers himself, and, stooping over the thwarts of the boat, he draws forth a strange looking canvas bag, which he gloats over for a moment, and then carefully se cures it to his belt. Presently he turns, and scans the three hundred feet of rugged wall for some spot where he can scale it. Apparently he has decided, but he walks painfully, as if stiff and sore. His climb is long and tedlous, fraught with danger, but with the steady head and ready hand of a seaman he surmounts all obstacles. When he reaches the top he looks contemptuously seaward, as if even the mighty ocean was but an instrument of his will, for Paolo bends all things and all people to his will, and those that will not bend mus break. Turning, he cast his keen glance in all di-rections, as if to satisfy himself of his bearings. then plunged into the dense forest that extended far into the interior, walking with greater strength and freedom as each moment passed. He seemed pleasure overspread his features as he drew near an immense oak, whose wide spreading branche almost swept the ground. Here, close by the trunk with the aid of a sharpened stick, he digs a hole and burries the canvas sack that he has so care fully guarded. After removing all traces to show that the ground had been recently disturbed, which he considered an almost useless precaution, he drew the sheath knife that he carried at his belt and made a rude cross on the tree to mark the spot

There is the stillness of death-the fateful calm that precedes the storm.

Then he started on a weary tramp, and just as the was sinking he reached the little village of Bim, a fishing station on the French coast, v inhabitants mainly subsist upon the planting, pre serving and gathering of the oyster. Here, year in and year out, one hears nothing but conversation concerning the welfare of this bivalve. The in habitants are as much lost to the outside world as though they were residents of another planet, as Paolo lounged for awhile near the door of the small inn, the hardy fishermen who met there to drink their sour wine and flery cognac as they re ated their successes, looked at him curiously

Up a long hill to a sweet little house, half hidden with flowering vines, where Father Michand lived, walked Paolo and his new found benefactor. Lights were burning brightly in the windows, and as their steps sounded in the court yard a lovely, golden haired girl of twenty years came running "His daughter," thought Paolo: what a magnificent creature."

woman that he had learned to love. Her very cold-ness had added force to his passion, and his constant dream was how he could win her. Plot after plot flashed through his fertile brain, and scheme after scheme was rejected as impracticable

Two years had passed, when Father Michand took a severe cold from exposure during a storm at sea, and was confined to his bed. Paolo was untireable as a nurse, and, even after a day's hard work, he would insist upon relieving Marie, and spend half the night by the side of him whom he called his benefactor. He was as gentle as a woman, and the old man was always talking of his luck in having socks for her brothers, when suddenly Paolo burst well how to love. I will be your slave, your ador into the room, exclaiming: "Marie, you must fly; ing lover. Ah, Marie, do not turn from me and you are in great danger, and I alone can save you." you had seen a ghost. What danger threatens shudder as if you hated my very presence. Listen, darling. I am the only one who can save you now—save you from the guillotine—for a warrant is to be served upon you at once. Still, if you will fly with me-come. I have everything prepared. Darling, you will never regret it-I will care for you, I will shield you. For God's sake, come. Think of all you will have to suffer if you do not accept my By this time Marie had freed herself from his embrace and stood indignantly panting before him.

"How dare you! You coward! You villain! To take advantage of my womanly weakness? Accept help from you! Never; and I'm glad a time has come when I can tell you how I despise, nay, loathe you." And rushing to the fireplace, she seized the gun which hung there, and, pointing it at Paolo, who was about to throw his arms around her again, she cried: "Don't come near me, don't touch me at your peril." Just then a crowd of villagers, men, women and children, burst into the cottage, shouting: "Down with the murderess? Down with her!" Marie drew herself up to her full height, and in a voice that awed even the rabble, exclaimed: "I am innocent, as is everyone until proved guilty! I am willing to go with you quietly, and no one is more anxious than I to see the guilty party brought to

The trial continued for several days and the evidence seemed all against Marie, until just at the close of the fifth day a bright boy of fifteen years of age burst past the gendarmes on guard in the court room, shouting: "Gentlemen, gentlemen, hear me, hear me!" The officers endeavored to re move him, but the Court ordered him to be brought before the bar.

"What I have to tell about is that sneak of an Italian—that Paolo—and it may help Madame Marie. When he first landed on our shore, some years ago, was a very small boy. We lived on the coast and I used to roam about the beach and through the forest. One day I saw him (pointing to Paolo) come ashore in a boat, climb up the cliff and dig a hole at the foot of a tree. When he was gone I dug up the sand and found that he had buried a sack, but I was afraid to touch it then. Yesterday I just happened to remember it, so I started off to get the bag, and here it is."

A great sensation was caused when the bag was opened in the court room and found to contain a knife, stained with blood, a gold watch, a pocket book filled with money, and some letters to the captain of the ship "Anna." Paolo, when con-fronted with these articles, almost swooned away, and confessed that he had helped to murder the captain when the sailors had mudinied, and that they had then scuttled the ship and taken to the boats. Seeing that the game was up, and that the guillotine awaited him, he also confessed that he had poisoned Father Michand for the purpose of ng him out of the way that he might marry

Marie was at once discharged from custody, and Paolo was shortly afterwards tried, convicted and guillotined.

THE ARAB SADDLE.

The Spahi retains his national dress, furbished up to make him feel proud. He rides in a saddle which is all but as bad as the one Indians used to make with straight up and down pommel and cantie. The tree and bearings are long. The pomme is coarse and rises with scarce a slope to about the waistband when the man sits down. The cantie rises almost perpendicularly and is two inches higher—really above the small of the back. Sad-dle cloths ad libitum, woven girths and leather

The stirrup leather hangs from the middle of the tree, and the foot is thrust away into a huge metal stirrup, with a footpiece square and as big as a platter. A breast strap holds the saddle in place for lack of body, and the horse is bitted with a gag held in a peculiar bridle with blinders. The Spahi's sword rides under his left leg, like the Mexican's: his earbine he carries or slings. has revolvers in his holsters—all of the best make and pattern.

much like the type of the aboriginal Indian of our plains. When he sits in the saddle he is apt to lean forward: from hip down to knee the leg is all but perpendicular, and from knee down it is thrust back at what we civilized folk deem a most un horsemanlike angle. He hates spurs, because they prevent his drubbing his horse's flanks with his heels as well as of holding on by them. Still, fashion often claims him for her own; he puts on spurs and tries to keep his heels where they belong. is very expert in the saddle, both in the way of tricks and at drill.

Most Arab saddles have such an abnormal breadth between the legs as obliges you to spread your knees. If you want to try the way Orientals usually sit in the saddle get an extra wide cane seat chair, sit astride it facing the back, and then put your heels up on the side rounds. Don't lean on the chair back; imagine a cantle behind you about two inches above the buttons on the back of your coaf, and you have it exactly.
If you want to ride this way, make up your mind to the acme of discomfort until you are used to it. Your feet will go to sleep and your hips will get tired enough to make you howl before you have covered ten miles. Even an old horseman who is undergo the same trial .- Harper's Magazine.

It is interesting to note how frequently animals "Rienzi," "Les Huguenots" and numerous others but even in this respect we play a poor second to our ancestors. In 1880, for example, Freschi's "Berenice" was produced at Padua. The printed book of words contains directions for one hundred horsemen in iron armor, forty cornets and six trumpeters on horseback, six chariots, two lions led by Turks, two lions led by elephanis, a stable containing one hundred horses, and a forest filled with bears, deer and wild boars .- Boston Tran-

But Marie left with a very different step from tha with which she had come to meet Michand. She had noted the look of intense admiration in the eyes of the handsome stranger, and an instinctive feeling of trouble oppressed her. A close observer would readily have noticed that she had taken a suddden, an intense dislike to her guest, for her features could be read almost like an open book.
"His WIFE!" thought Paolo that night when retired to the cosy little chamber allotted to him under the eaves. "Why, he is old enough to be her grandfather, let alone her father. He can nevel have taught her to love as I could have done—nay, as I shall do. My lady has not fallen in love with me at first sight, that is one thing sure, for although she did not say as much she looked a good deal more. But I'll take care to worm myself into her good graces, and then the rest will be easy, for Paolo has yet to meet a woman whose will be could not bend or subdue—whose love he could not win."

As time passed Paolo proved a treasure about He was always ready and always willing, with a pleasant smile joke, when others were tired out and longed only est wish, and his greatest pleasure seemed to b when an opportunity offered to serve her. Yet all his' efforts to ingratiate himself in her favor met with little success. cary called every day, and bled him many times, besides prescribing and filling the prescription with many of his most costly medicines, he lingered for a fortnight, then passed peacefully away.

Marie seemed inconsolable for his loss, and be ame more and more reserved. Her brothers carried on the business just as it had been transacted before, and the oyster planting, preserving and dredging was continued as though Father Michand still directed the movements of the little fleet. They had become warmly attached to Paolo, whose industry, honesty and fearlessness had won their hearts completely, and frequently remonstrated with their sister on the discourteous manner in which she treated him.

By and by a vague rumor spread through the vilthat Father Michand had not died a natural death; in fact, that he had been poisoned. How it originated no one could tell, but dark hints pointed to Marie as the murderess.

"Why," said one, "does she never show herself in "Yes," said another. "and it's months since she has been to confession." "The body ought to be disinterred and examined," murmured the crowd. No sooner was this idea formulated than a num ber of villagers went before the magistrate and re lated the story of the young and beautiful girl married to the old man, his comparatively sudden death and her actions since. Sensations were rare in Biff and the magistrate felt the importance of one time he had paid some compliment to Marie and that she had received it with such ill grace that there had never been a second attempt at ga lantry on his part. In response to the request of the delegation he gave orders to send to Paris for

> "You do not answer me-vou look so sad. Ah ou spoke of danger to me. You urged me to fly My God! you do not mean that suspicion points to me? Tell me, Paolo: I will know. Is that what you mean?" She clutched his arm and forced him to look at her, and, as he did so, he bent his head in answer to her question.

'My God, how terrible! who could think it possi ble that I would be guilty of such a crime. And to poison the man I loved with all my heart. For did love Father Michand. Dear, good old man, who took me and my brothers into his own house when our parents died and left us penniless. I was only two years old then, but when I grew up the village gossips began to wag their tongues, and say that it was not proper that a young girl, who was no rela-tion, should live with him without another woman in the house. The dear old man explained the situation to me, and asked me to marry him. which I gladly did. No! some enemy has done this I gladly did. No: some enemy has done this shameful wrong, and why I cannot tell. Go, Paolo tell all who speak to you that it is a lie."

Ten days afterwards the examination had bee made, and the doctors declared that they had found enough arsenic in Michand's stomach to have killed ten men. A warrant was issued for Marie's arrest, but Paolo was ahead, and burst in upon Marie, exclaiming:

"Marie, Marie, all is lost! They have discovered a quantity of arsenic in Michand's stomach, and

Marie gave a piercing cry and fell back upon the sofa senseless. Paolo siezed her around the wais and rained kisses upon her unconscious lips. Chicago.—Last week "Old Sol" seemed to hang at arm's length above us, and the manner in which his influence was felt brought sorrow to the average man agerial heart and disaster to his pocket book. After six days of almost unbearable humidity our amusement providers look about them and from a box office standpoint wonder "where they are at." Vaudeville furnishers and exponents of the legitimate suffered alike the devastating effect of the heat, and it all hands paid expenses they have excellent grounds for congratulation. Even "America's" phenomenal success at the Audiorium leit the sun's rays with diminishing effect, and the general run of our resorts came in for a black eye. True there were a few well proportioned turnouts at some of the down town houses, but they were too much like ben's teeth to foot up a big total. The appender references to business must be qualified by the expression, "bot weather considered."

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—"All Baba." resplendent with gorgeous trappings and beautified at every turn by faultiess scenic effect, continues to rean great quantities of pelf for Manager Henderson. Although the demand for admissions is still great enough to warrant an indefinite continuation of "All Baba," its intinisated that a revival of "Sinbal" is in the fire, to be brought out in a few weeks in a manner to completely outshine (Graxh) Organ. Their claims that on Summer evenings, the theatres are the coolest spots to be found in the city received public endorsement. The matter of necessary interior decorations of the Eighth Street Theatre compels Manager Jack to announce the current week as the last of the season at that house.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—An alluring repertory was begun July 17 by the Heinrich Grand Opera Co. with "Carmen." "Faust," Cavaileria Rusticana," "Trovatore," "I Pagliacci," "La Traviata" and "The Bohemian Girl" are underlined in the order named. Large audiences were the rule last week, and nothing but the warmest approval is given the artistic work of the company. So far, the Summer opera reason at the Grand has been the most prosperous in the history of the house.

BLOC.—Before the opening of the doors, a big crowd congregates on the sidewalk, and before the performatides Gustav Marschore, Beion Consection, and the control of the company. So far, the Summer opera reason at the sweek's bill in Righty, O'Brien and Carroll, Jerome, Burus and Donnelly, Alexis, Snyder and Buckley, Boyle and Grahm, Leonarl and Fulton, W. J. JACK's Eighth Strager Theartes.—The burlesque, "My Uncle," is retained for the last week of the season here. Cyrene and Mande Raymond are holding over. Smith and Campbell give a new budget of whinscalities.

WINTER CRUCCS GARDEN.—This week's bill includes William Courtwright. Satsums. Flora, the Rooster Quartet, Billy Distin, Allyn and Lingard, and Texarkan.

Pittsburg .- There is nothing to relieve the uni-Pittsburg.—There is nothing to relieve the universal dullness of things theatrical and the uter dearth of theatrical newshere, save the sound of the mechanic's hammer and the movement of the painter's brush. The New Palace Theatre, on the site of the old Worli's Museum Theatre, Allegheny, is being pushed rapidly to completion. At the Bijou Theatre a large force of cleaners, painters and frescoers are at work. Manager Gulick says the house will be much handsomer next season than ever before. Farce comedy and meledrama will be the principal attractions at that house.

HARRIS THEATRE—"The Octoroon" was produced in an elaborate manner July 17. "Nick of the Woods" was withdrawn ib. Being the only place of amusement open in our city, this house is doing an excellent Summer business.

Scranton.—The season of 1893-4 in this city promises to be one of unusual activity, the result of improvements and change in the cit houses, and the addition of a new theatre. that a brother of Charles Craig, who was with the "Paul Kauvar" Co. at one time and afterward in the support of Cora Tanner, was accidentally drowned in Rainy Lake, near that city, some weeks ago. The body has been recovered, and has been temporarily buried until the deceased's relatives can be heard from. Mr. McIntyre is making extra efforts to discover the whereabouts of Mr. Craig, in order to arrange for the disposition of some property left by the deceased.

— After a thrilling fight with the breakers and in the presence of some four thousand excited spectators, Capt. Clark rescued James W. Patterson, a member of "The Huster" Co., from drowning in the surf at Atlantic City. N. J., on the afternoon of July 15. Mr. Patterson, who is an expert swimmer, attempted to swim around the end of the long iron piero na wager made with Charles A. Davis. Mr. Patterson had accomplished the feat before, but on this attempt he was caught in a fierce current and dashed against the iron piliars at the head of the big structure. Sea after sea broke over him and the brave guardsman pulled Patterson ashore.

Henry E. Abbey took a complimentary benefit April 21, and he realized about $36,000. The artists engaged for the season were the best that money could command. Unfortunately, however, the total paid to them was so enormous that, notwithstanding the house was nightly crowded, the receipts did not aggregate the amount paid for salaries. Abbey became heavily involved and was compelled to reliquish the lease.

was born in Carson City, Nev., but removed with her parents to Oakland, Cal., at so early an age that she has always looked upon it as her only home. Miss Oliver, who is of French parentage, and whose father is not only an accomplished linguist, but al-so a man of much erudition, was carefully instructed in many respects in the home circle, and in June, 1888, graduated with distinction from the Oakland High School. Having early displayed histrionic talent, she resolved to adopt a stage career, not for the mere sake of a livelihood, but to develop and employ to the best advantage her natural endowemploy to the best advantage her natural endow-ments. Consequently, when but eighteen years of age she made her professional debut at Duluth, Minn., playing Queen Gertrude to the Hamlet of Daniel E. Bandmann. She remained with Mr. Band-mann until May, 1890, during which time she played mann until May, 1880, during which time she played many important roles in the legitimate drama. During this engagement the repertory embraced, among other standard plays: "Macbeth," "Hamlet," "Richard III," "Otherlo," "The Merchant of Ven-ice," "Richelieu," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Nar-"Richard III," "Otherho," "The Merchant of Venice," "Richelleu," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Narcisse," and, although Miss Oliver was engaged to do only leading business, her great desire to attempt all kinds of roles, coupled with Mr. Bandmann's appreciation of her powers, resulted in her playing, among other ambitions ventures, both Julie and Francois, Iago, Desdemona and Emilia, Romeo and Juliet, Lady Macbeth and the First Witch, Portia and Queen Elizabeth. One of her most successful portrayals at this time was the Pompadour in "Narcisse." The training and experience received during this season was, of course, invaluable, and has already been productive of most satisfactory results. Coming to New York in 1890, Miss. Oliver appeared in "Alone in London," doing Nan for a season of twelve weeks. Following this engagement came a season with Frederick Warde, during which Miss Oliver played such parts as Hermione in "Damon and Pythias," Flora in "The Mountebank," Queen Elizabeth and Queen Margaret in "Richard III," with many others of like importance. On May 30, 1892, she appeared for one week at the People's Theatre, New York, playing Saruh Gooch in "The House on the Marsh," a role in which she was subsequently seen upon the road, and in which her unquestioned powers commanded instant and universal recognition. So great, in fact, was her success in this role that she was again especially engaged to appear in it during the recent brief revival of the play at the Grand Opera House, in this city. Subsequently Miss Oliver appeared in the production of "Ye Early Trouble" at Proctor's Theatre; afterwards as Lady Brandon in "The Power of Gold," and finally as a member of John Stetson's Western "Crust of Society" Co. Miss Oliver is of a strong, earnest and steadfast nature disciplined to self reliance. She loves her art with singleness of devotion. She is a close and conscientious student, and is gifted with rare intelligence, her analytical faculty being an especially rare endowment. She neglectally eligence, per analytical cisse," and, although Miss Oliver was engaged to do

NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week's Events .- A harvest of disap intment has been reaped in this city. There has evidently been something wrong in the management of the Columbian Exposition, for the crowd of foreign visitors that was to have been attracted to our shores has failed to arrive. The effect of their coming had been discounted, as it was cer-fainly expected they would tarry awhile in this city, the terminus of the ocean highway, en route to the West, and business in all branches looked for stimulus. They came not, however, but in their stead came financial disaster, not from abroad, but bred at home. Consequently business has been stagnated, and theatrical managers in this city have not found the bags full of gold supposed to rest at the end of the rainbow. So dull a condition of theatrical affairs as that existing at present in this city is almost unprecedent-ed. Just how lethargic is the business here may be judged from the brief summary which follows.

Whether or not the present condition of affairs is an indication of the prospects for managers in their coming tours throughout the coun try is a theme worthy of careful consideration.....
The continued bills for the week ending July 18

ter house closed 16 to remain dark for one month, to permit of alterations and improvements..... Grand opera in German continued at the Lexing-ton Avenue Opera House. The following works were presented during the week ending 15: "The Gypsy Baron," "Fatinitza," "Gasparone" and "Orpheus."...... Vaudeville performances were begun 10 at Eldorado and will be continued during the balance of the season, two brief performances daily being given, the first at 4 P. M. and the evening, prior to the presentation of the main attraction, "King Solomon." EIGHTH STREET THEATRE..... The audience which hoped to see "King Solomon" at Eidorado on the night of 11 was disappointed, owing to a strike of the orchestra. It was explained that the musical rector had never been previously tried in a simi lar place, and that a condition agreed upon at the time of his engagement was that if he proved in any manner unsatisfactory his services might be dispensed with. Such a contingency baving arisen, he was asked to resign, but, failing to com ply, was discharged. The fifty musicians under him demanded his reinstatement and threatened to quit. The management offered to engage these men for the remainder of the season, but refused to reinstate the leader. The threat was thereupon excuted at the close of the evening's vaudeville performance. It was then announced that there would be no performance of "King Solomon," and an offer to refund the admission money was made, but ac-cepted by few. The variety performers were then again called into requisition and a second performance was given, and finally rainy day tickets, good for ten days, were distributed among the audience. An emergency or chestra was secured for the following night and performances have since been regularly given in spite of the fact that it was discovered that the musical scores had been purloined.....The Theatre of Arts and Letters has come to grief after a brief and somewhat inglorious existence. It was incorporated as a club, but without initiation fee or dues, its revenue having been derived from the five dollar subscrip-tion fee charged for each dramatic peformance. Nine new plays in all were produced and the bal ance was found to weigh heavily and uncomforta bly upon the wrong side of the ledger. Conse quently notice has been given of the proposed sale of all the manuscripts, scenery, properties, cos-tumes and the rights to the plays already produced.

The charter not having been annulied the club still exists, and through the efforts of its promotors is said to be free from debt, but the original purpose of the organization seems to have been abandoned, and as yet no action has been taken by the board of methods of producing tone. Her reading was followed by the propounding of numerous questions by the many members present and by an informal discussion of the subject of the paper...H. W. Roseborn, manager of The Hebrere Standard, of this city, secured 13 a lease of the Casino for twelve weeks, beginning Sept. 1. Mr. Roseborn, who represents a syndicate, purposes producing the new opera by Sydney Rosenfeld and Rudolph Aronson entitled "The Rifi makers of Syria." Fabius M. Clark and Henry F. suiter, the receivers of the New York Concert Co., sale ed the lease, the rental being $866 a week. The tratection requires the approval of the Attorney General, which it is expected will be forthcoming. Negotiations are still pending for the sale of the receiver's certificates, and the above transaction will in no way affect the reorganization scheme, which is as yet in abeyance, owing to the absence from the city of several parties necessary to its furtherance. At the Broadway Theatre, 15, the last appearance of Delia Fox prior to her vacation, was selected as the occasion for a love feast. Inconsiderate and unkind gossip, following the recent marriage of De Wolf Hopper, had rendered some statement conserving the future professional rela-tions between himself and Miss Fox, an act of ab-solute justice to that lady, and at the end of the solute justice to that lady, and at the end of the first act of "Panjandrum" Mr. Hopper appeared before the curtain, and in a brief and felletitous speech announced that the temporary retirement of Miss Fox was only because of serious throat trouble and in obedience to the peremptory command of her physician. He further more paid the lady the compliments due her, and announced that she would certainly rejoin the company in September. Thereupon he brought forward Miss Fox, who corroborated his statements and who brought Mrs. Hopper upon the stage and, after stating how kindly she felt towards this lady, who would temporarily assume her role, the two ladies brought the feast to a close by a loving kiss.

A RUMOR was current last week that Oscar Ham-meratein was about to dispose of his interest in the Columbus Theatre, Harlem, to James Mc-Creery, drygoods merchant, and that Frank B, Murtha would be in control of the house under the new management. Mr. Hammerstein emphati-cally denies the rumor, and says that he has no in-tention of disposing of his interest in any of his theatres.

An ATTACHMENT against the Eolivian Indian Troupe at Coney Island was served July 15, at the instance of Emma C. Sickels. The amount involved, $22.85, was paid by Miss Sickels in defrayment of the funeral expenses of Santos, the Peruvian giant, who was buried May 21, while the troupe was exhibiting at the Press Club Fair. Aleibiades Surocco, one of the mansgers of the Indians, having made statements that money was due them for that engagement, Miss Sickels, who makes a directly contrary statement, took this means to recover the money which she claims to be justly due her.

Broadway Theathe.—There was a large attendance July 17 to witness Mrs. Edna Waliace-Hopper's appearance in the role of Paquita in "Panjandrum," a role which she will continue to fill during the vacation of Delia Fox. Mrs. Hopper's youthful charms of appearance and simplicity of manner were greatly appreciated and she was received with many demonstrations of favor. That her performance was not equal to that of her predecessor in the role is a fact, which, under all the circumstances, is not necessarily disparaging, especially in in the role is a fact, which those sai the circonstances, is not necessarily disparaging, especially in view of her unaffected manner and her evident desire to keep her performance in harmony with her surroundings. Mrs. Hopper has given sufficient evidence of ability in her proper sphere to be content with her achievement in a field her presence in which is due to her complaisance and not to her ambition.

"Zimmy" Wins and is Defeated.

The meeting of the Rockville (Ct.) Wheel Club, which took place on Saturday afternoon, July 15, was made especially attractive by the presence of a number of cycling cracks, including the great Arthur A. Zimmerman. The latter met with a reverse in the balf mile sprinting event, in which he got off badly, and could never recover the distance he lost thereby, so that he had to be content with finishing behind H. C. Tyler and W. W. Windle. However, as both of these men are Al viders, the Jerssyman did not mind that, and he later on had full satisfaction. The events were generally very interesting and the results were as follow:

One mile, novice—Armon A. Alling, New Haven, first; Edward dia land, Hartford, second; W. E. Tenzler, East Warren, third. Time, 100, 109%.

I. Rice was at the head of the procession to a point almost midway between Dunsilen and New Atkinson assumed charge of affairs, his clubmate, John son, taking second place. The pride of place was retained by Atkinson till Princeton was reached, when Yan Emberg was second and Marshall thid, with Linneman, one of the scratch men, an easy fourth. After leaving Princeton the latter improved his pace, and at Bellemead he was in command, which position was not wrested from him afterwards, nor was he ever in any danger of losing it. Several accidents occurred during the race, and a number of tires were opiniumly obtained to the scratch men and the seven and a decident occurred during the race, and a number of tires were opiniumly obtained and well conducted. The order of the finish and the time of the leaders was as shown in the appended table. Net Time.

James Stansbury, the world's champion sculler, and Jake Gaudaur, America's champion, have not been able to agree upon terms for their proposed sculling matches. Stansbury refuses to row for the world's championahip to agree upon terms for their proposed sculling matches. Stansbury refuses to row for the world's championship except over a straightaway course, as in the case of all previous matches for the title, but offers to make a match for the championship of America. to be rowed over a three mile turning course, as customary in this country. Gaudaur don't want to row any race over a straightaway course, but might agree to contend with Stansbury for the world's champion-hip on such a course, providing the latter would consent to any reputable sporting or daily paper holding the stakes, instead of insisting that the stakeholder shall be a party with whom the Gaudaur side will not have anything to do. This objection is solely what prevents the making of a match for the American championship. Stansbury has now issued a challenge to row any man three or five miles, straightaway, for $2,500 a side and the championship of the world, and he is said to have put up a forfelt of $200. A dispatch from San Francisco states that Heary Feterson will a scept the dest, but he has not yet covered the deposit, something that ought to be done before making declurations in print. On the strength of the race at Austin, Texas, the Campelon and would seem to be a worthy opponents with able oarsmen, but on previous form Stansbury ears in the order of the surface of the surface of the content of the surface of the content of t

The Knickerbocker Yacht Club, of this city, held a regatta July 8 for sloops on Long Island Sound, over a course from off the club house to a stake boat off Barretto's Point, to Clawson's Point, to the club house; to be twice sailed over, making a total distance of ten miles. The only disappointment distance of ten miles. The only disappointment felt was caused by the sparsity of entries, only half a dozen of the little fellows competing. However a good race was enjoyed by those who witnessed it from the club house. Summary: CLASS A—CABIN SLOOPS AND CUTTERS—26FT. AND

The little clubs often have just as much sport as the big ones, and such was the case when the Au-dubon Yacht Club held its regatta, July 4, on the Hudson River. The course was from the club house, at the foot of One Hundred and Fifty-third Street, to a stakeboat opposite Rockside Park, N. J., thence to Edgewster and back to the club house. The boats went over the course twice, a distance of about twelve miles. They had a good stiff wind from the northwest. The judges were C. J. Leach, Daniel Snerman and J. S. Birrell. Summary:

McCusker Defeats Finney.

William McCusker, of Lowell, Mass., defeated James Finney, the English champion swimmer, in their mile match, for $1,000 a side and the chamtheir mile match, for $1,000 a side and the championship, which took place at Blackpool, Eng., on July 15. This is all the information that the cable brings, except that the victor has been challenged by Joey Nuttall, the ex-champion, to a similar match, for $5,000 a side. The challenge will doubtless be accepted. The victory of Mccusker, achieved as it was with ease, proves him to be a faster man than even his warmest friends here gave him credit for being. He won the championship of America in a race at Lowell a couple of years ago, outswimming Robert Magee and others.

The Canadian Association.

The annual regatta for the championship of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen will this year be held at Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 4, 5. The this year be held at Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 4, 5. The association have issued a very neatly printed and bound programme book, full of information of use to intending participants and spectators. From it we learn that the races will include senior fours, senior singles, junior fours, junior singles, senior and junior double sculls, and pair oars. The trial heats will be rowed on the first day and the finals on the next. The prizes will be challenge cups of gold and silver and medals of the same metals, with silk flags for each winning club. The course will be a mile and a half straight:way, and will be laid out on both bay and lake.

THE National Swimming Association, of Philadelphia, have decided to hold a series of races for prizes at the Grand Swimming Baths, in that city, on Tuesday evening, July 25, and the following programme has been arranged for the occasion: Boys' race, two lengths (scratch), open to boys under 14; novice race, two lengths, open; open handicap, four lengths, and a 440yds, open handicap. First and second prizes will be awarded in each event. In addition to above races there will be an exhibition of swimming and diving by Professor Charles Wolsoyd and pupils. These races will be open to all amateurs, and the meeting gives promise of being successful.

CHARLES E. DAVIES, for Peter Jackson, JAMES J. CORBEIT.

Witness: JOR B. CHOYNSKI. EDDIR FOY.

It will be observed that the meeting of Jackson and Corbett depends upon the result of a previous battle between the American and Mitchell, but, whatever that issue may be, the principals and their astute managers. Messrs, Davies and Brady, are ensured the benefit of at least six months excellent free advertising, which will serve to materially increase the receipts of 'Gentleman Jack' and 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' in which they respectively appeal to the theatre goers of America, which is just at present essentially the paradise of actor puglists.

Fitzsimmons' Position.

In response to a dispatch from the president of the Columbian Athletic Club, of Roby, Ind., offering a purse of $17,000 for a finish fight between Rob Fitzsimmons and Joe Cheynski, the Australian stated that he was determined to adhere to his resolution not to again go out of he class to fight any one save sim Corbett, and because the control of the class of the class and that he boy with the auburn hair has met with since his arrival in the United States, not so very long ago, has caused his estimate of his cash value to undergo a great change. Only a few years ago Sir Robert was willing to do a turn with the small gloves for as many pairty dollars as he now demands thousands, and he object to eliver at that. Well, Bob is one of the few sensible fighters who know enough to take care of the money his fistic prowess secures him, and he can afford to laugh at those who tak disrangingly of him personally because he is not thoroughly "one of the boys."

Stopped by the Police.

The fifteen round glove contest at Jackson, Mich.
July 12, between George La Blanche and Bob Man-July 12, between George La Bianche and 1805 Man-ning was stopped in the eighth round by the po-lice. In the third round Manning knocked "the Marine" under the ropes, but up to the seventh there was little fighting aside from this. The men clinched most of the time. The last round, how-ever, became so hot that the police were satisfied that it was to be a knock out, and interfered. Man-ning appeared to have a little the best of the fight at the close.

Arrest of a Pugilist.

George Lavigne, of Bay City, Mich., for whom Sheriff Taylor, of La Salle County, Ill., has been looking for the last three weeks, was arrested at Chicago, Ill., July 11. Lavigne and Eddie Meyer engaged in a fight near Streator, Ill., about three months ago. All those who had anything to do with the fight were indicted by the La Salle County grand jury, but Lavigne eluded arrest. Lavigne was taken to La Salle County next day.

JUDGE NEWTON, match maker of the Coney Island Athletic Club, on July 11, telegraphed to Jack bempsey, at Portland, Ore., saying that the date of the fight between him and Bully Smith before the club by the sea had been postponed till September. A dispatch from Portland says the reception of the telegram was a surprise to Dempsey, who was on the eve of starting for New York, but who will remain in Oregon a while longer. Jack declares that he is not to blame for the unsatisfactory manner in which the negotiations had been conducted, he having been anxious to have the match settled, but never having been able to have the conditions governing the contest stated in the articles of agreement.

A Journalisle Tramp.

Among the steerage passengers brought to this port by the French steamer La Champagne, which arrived at her dock on July 19, was George Grandin, a journalist connected with The Paris Petis Journal. He makes a specialty of waiking as well a of writing, and expects to walk from this city to Chicago, taking notes by the way. He walked from Paris to Havre, and, in order to keep himself in trim for his long cross country jaunt, he says ho walked fitteen miles every day the ship was at sea. He also says he brought ho money with him, for he wants to fry the experiment of "deadheading" his way to Chicago and hence back to Paris. He will doubtless find his reward in the experience he is likely to encounter. likely to encounter.

that best is good enough to defeat Steinitz remains to be seen.

"I wish to say that I have never played my best chess, for I have never been required to exert myself to defeat such players as I have encountered. I am willing to admit that Steinitz is decidedly superior to any one I have confronted, yet I shall face him with the firm conviction that I will defeat him. I may have some surprise in store tor him and the chess world. I am regarded as strongest in defence and end games; yet in my match with Steinitz I may prove that my ability lies in attacks. I expect to open the eyes of chess players. I am imbued with an ambition to be acknowledged chess champion of the world, and If the match with Steinitz can be arranged that ambition will soon be gratified."

British Chess Magazine.—We have received from I. M. Brown, 19 Bagby Street, Leeds, Eng., a large package of this splendid Caissan publication, which Mr. B. modestly cails an amateur magazine. Here is a work after our own heart. It is not too solemn; its games are of the most inheresting, and not republished years annotated; its problems are of surprising variety and attractive cleapaired of secing—an English magazine that in breadth of problem treatment can contest the paim with La Natategie and Nuora Reisia. In the literary department there is much that is solid, but nothing stilled; never a quarrel and no offensive personalities; vivacious, readable, up to the times. What more could be asked? Pittsburg vs. New York.

The fifth game of the series was played July 11, at Pittsburg, the home team then winning for the third time. Schmidt started in to pitch, but gave way to Davies after the first inning, when the home team made only one run off four safe hits. Donovan was then caught napping at first base. Davies was will and ineffective in the fourth inning, giving two bases on balls, one of which forced in a run, and being batted safely three times for singles, which, with errors, helped the Pittsburgs to seven runs and a long lead. Gumbert was in fine form, and held the New Yorks down to seven scattering safe hits, one of which, however, was a double bagger by Tiernan that brought in Fuller and Davies, who had been given bases on balls. Glasscock led in batting with four singles. Stenzel, who made a home run, played instead of Smith, who had a lame ankle. Donovan distinguished himself in fielding, making six clever catches.

The fifth game was played July 11, at Louisville, Ky., the Brooklyns, after a hard uphill fight, then scoring their fourth victory of the series. Brouthers, Browning and O'Rourke were sick and unable to play. The home team started off with a long to play. The home team started off with a long lead, scoring eight runs in the first inning, six of which were earned. After the first inning Kennedy kept the hits well scattered and was fairly effective. The Brooklyns batted Stratton hard, especially in the fourth inning, when they bunched eleven safe hits and scored no fewer than ten runs, thus giving them a winning lead. Rhodes was substituted as pitcher in the sixth inning and held the visitors down to one safe hit during the remainder of the contest. Corcoran led in batting and fielding, he making four safe hits, including a double bagger, and accepting all of ten chances at short stop. T. Brown did the best batting for the home team, gettin three doubles and a single. Pinkney bayed

These clubs contended for the sixth time July 11. at Cincinnati, the home team then securing their fourth victory of the series. Mullane started in to pitch, but the excited speciators yelled and be-haved so badly towards him that he became "rat-fled" and McNabb was substituted in the sixth inning. The home team had then made only three scattering singles off Mullane, but had scored five runs mainly by errors by McGraw, aided by two bases on balls in the fourth inning, when Ward was substituted for J. Smith. McNabb was batted hard in the sixth, six singles scoring six runs for the home team, helping them to a winning lead, Chamberlain was wild and the bases he gave on balls were costly. McPhee and Holliday each made three safe hits and led in batting, the former's including a triple and the latter's two doubles. Canavan made a great catch of a hit that seemed safe for a home run.

These clubs contended for the fourth time July 13, at Louisville, Ky., the home tailender team then unexpectedly scoring their first victory of the series with the leaders in the pennant race. Rhodes prevented the Philadelphias from making

The same score marked the game played July 14, when timely hitting helped the Philadelphias to reverse the above result and figures. Hemming pitched effectively up to the seventh inning, when three singles enabled the Philadelphias to make two runs and tie the score. Clements struck out in this inning, leaving three men on bases. The visitors had the bases filled again in the eighth inning, when Thompson hit to centre for a single and Delehanty sent all in by a home run drive to left centre. Carsey managed to keep the hits well scattered, with the exception of the third inning, when the home team bunched a triple and four singles and scored four runs. Hallman's fine work at second base was the fielding feature, he accepting all of eleven chances. Weaver made a great

The fourth game of the series was played July 13, at Pittsburg, Pa., the home team then winning for the second time. Ehret had the visitors shut out without a run, and with only two scattering singles up to the ninth inning. He then eased up, and a single, double and triple, together with a base on bails, gave the visitors three runs. Mc-Laughlin made a bad decision in the first linning, declaring Radford out at the plate. The Pittsburgs pounded Esper hard, Reckley leading with three safe hits, including a timely triple bagger. Sullivan's short stopping was the fleiding feature, he accepting all of eight chances in that position.

The sixth game of the series was piayed July 11, at Chicago, the home team then scoring their fourth victory. McGill pitched very effectively, holding the visitors down to three sca'tering his and giving only one base on balls in seven innings. He then gave way to Parker, a local amateur, who pitched the last three innings, and was batted freely. The Chicagos pounded Duryea hard and often, making twenty-three safe hits, with a total of thirty-three bases, earning twelve of their fifteen runs. Lauge, Ryan and Dahlen led in batting, the first named making a home run and a triple bagger. O'Routke did the best batting for the visitors. Farrell commenced catching, but was hurt, and McGulre took his place. Wise accepted all of fifteen chances at second base.

St. Louis vs. Brooklyn.

The fourth game of the series was played July 13, at St. Louis, the home team then winning for the first time this season. Gleason held the Brooklyns mrst time this season. Gleason held the Brooklyns down to seven scattering safe hits, which included, however, a triple bagger by Stovey that saved a shut out. Stein also did good work, being batted only in the sixth lining, when the home team made three safe hits and scored two runs. Dowd drove in a run by a triple bagger, and good base running by Runnon helped the home team to another run. Brouthers accepted all of nineteen chances at first

Cleveland vs. New York.

The Cleveland lean defeated the New Yorks for the third time July 13, it being the fourth game of the series. The visitors started off with the lead, making four runs after two men were out and a chance had been given to retire the side in the first inning. Childs and Tebeau then came into collision, causing the latter to drop a high fly, and this vielded four uncarned runs. The visitors earned two runs off three safe hits in the fourth inning, but failed to score afterwards. The home team batted failedwin hard in the second and sixth innings, when they bunched nine safe hits and scored eight runs, helping them to a winning lead. McKean made three safe hits, including a triple and a timely double bagger.

EXTRACT FROM THE "THUNDERER" (LONDON TIMES).

THE BOXING KANGAROO.—Words cannot describe the marvelous training and proficiency as a boxing expert of the most peculiarly formed quadruped in existence. The animal stands erect, facing its opponent in true fighting fashion, and is ever on the alert to parry and escape his blows. It repeatedly assumes the aggressive and follows the boxer all over the ring. On these occasions it is not content with using its force paws alone, but stiffening its huge tall to support itself lands out tremendous blows with its hind legs, often knocking its antagonist across the ring. The success of this nover £22,900, or more than twice the income of fengland's Chancellor of the Exchequer. This is unprecedented in the annals of novelty enterprise.

one couplaint to spend an evening. Paige's Players opened the week sen zazement last night and a crowded house greeted those potular favorites. The piece produced was the comedy drama: Man and Master," and in it the company proved to be exceptionally strong. Mr. Paige appeared in the role of Jerry, and his representation of frich character kept the audience in an uproar and won for the actor many well merited plandits and well many the strong of the second act received a curtain call.

Miss Edna Leone, the captiviting souhreste of the company, was as chipper as could be, and will certainly be a favorite during her enga general here. The balance of the support was good; the specialities were all well received and the company is sure to be greeted with crowded houses during their stay. The band parade at mony esterials caught the crowd, and their excellent music was a treat. The orchestra is a good one and is a commendable feature of the entertainment.—FARGO ARGUS, July 4, 1893.

DALLY PLAINDEALER, June 22, Grand Forks, N. D.
The promises made for "East Lynne" were entirely uiffiled by Paige's Players last night. It was a most exsellent performance and the very large audience was horoughly pleased. Mrs. Lillian Paige in the dual role of Lady Isabel and Madam Vine demonstrated her pronounced ability in emotional lines, and in fact her work ast night was really a surcrise To our people who had several bundred people have to be turned away from the opera house each night because not another one could be crowded into the structure. There are two reasons for this; First, the company gives a good shiw; secondly, they are nice people from the manager down. Last night the house was packed—no, jammed is a better word. Tickets could not be handed out fast enough at one ticket office, so two were kept running. The seats having been exhausted early in the evening, chairs, washetands, boxes and even saw horses were brought in and placed wherever space could be found. Every foot of standing room was occupied before the curtain went up, and fully 2B people were turned away, wastaned the envisible reputation in the little role and during the week, and kept the training to the second of the se

The attendance at "East Lynne last night, was the largest of the week, and in it Paige's Players scored another success. For the first time during the week Miss Lillian Paige was given an opportunity to display her abilities as an emotional actrees, and it is but fair to say, that, as such, she is highly successful. Miss Page is a conscientious actrees, and in the dual role of Lady Isabel and Madam Vine she interpreted, perfectly, the author's ideal, George W. A skirt dance by the infants, Helen Paige and Goldie Wilson, probably the youngest dancers in this age of high kicking, proved an exceedingly funny turn, and threw the house into convolations.

Miss Frances Florida was seen again last night in her fascinating skirt dinces, receiving vocilerous applause. Miss Florida diverges from the stereotyped and regulation skirt dances somewhat, introducing by way of variety the Cachuca, the Persian, and several other of the latest and most intricate steps and movements.—DALLY PLAINDEALER, Grand Forks, N. A still larger audience turned out last night to see Paige's Players. There has naver been a better presentation of Washington Irving's idylot the Catekills. "Rip Yan Wins ie." than this popular company gave last night, and it is fair to say that Mr. Paige has few superiors in that character.—DAILY HERALD, Grand Forks, N. D., June 23, 1833.

A good sized audience witnessed an extremely pleasing and creditable presentation of "Daidy's Darling," by Paige's company of players at the Metropolitan last evening. Mr. Paige's portrayal of the character of an old fashioned down East farmer was true to the letter, and his clever work last night clearly demonstrated his capability and versatility as a comedian. The suppit was unusually strong, and the liberal applianse indicated that the noople were pleased with the curre cast—DAILY HERALD, Grant Forks, N. D., June 21, 1893.
